

THE INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP AGAINST CORRUPTION IN SPORT

Five years of IPACS – three questions to...

This year marks the fifth anniversary of IPACS. In light of the special anniversary, we caught up with Pâquerette Girard Zappelli, IOC Chief Ethics and Compliance Officer, to get some insight on how everything started and her take on IPACS' achievements to date.

PREVENTING COMPETITION MANIPULATION

Community of Believe in Sport ambassadors keeps growing

With peer-to-peer communication having proven most effective, NOCs across the globe lately appointed 30 new ambassadors for the Believe in Sport campaign. The aim is to recruit active and retired athletes across all countries and sports to help raise awareness about the threat of competition manipulation among peers, entourages and officials.

Did you know?

The latest version of the Olympic Charter now contains a reference to the prevention of competition manipulation, linked to the mission of NOCs. Rule 27, Bye-law 2.7 specifies that the NOCs' role is "to implement the Olympic Movement Code on the Prevention of the Manipulation of Competitions". A small but important addition in light of the NOCs' efforts in this important field. Read more in the next story!

Coming up

A new guide on the investigation of the manipulation of sports competitions is currently in the making, aimed at both law enforcement and sports investigators. The joint publication by the IOC, INTERPOL and the UNODC is due to be released in early 2023. In April, the three organisations hosted a virtual meeting to bring together a wide range of experts from law enforcement, sports organisations and state authorities, as well as experienced investigators, who all provided input to the first draft of the guide.

2021 Annual Report

In May, the IOC published its 2021 Annual Report, with a modified structure inspired by the five key trends that underpin Olympic Agenda 2020+5. Credibility is one of them and the respective section explains the measures undertaken in governance and ethics. In addition, the Report includes the audited financial statements for 2021.
